Gen. Halleck prepared to leave here to-day for Ft Donelson, and several officers of his staff packed their things, expecting to leave by the 4 o'clock train. The order was countermanded on receipt of the Cairo dispatches.

The steamer John Warner left to-day carrying the 26th Missouri Regiment, Col. Bloomer; the 3d Michigan battery, and Gen. Schuyler Hamilton, with 300 tons of arms and freight for the Tennessee River.

Several boxes of bandages and hospital supplies leave early to-merrow, at 3 in the morning, for Paducah, Mound City and Cairo, by order of the Sanitary Commission, anticipating the necessities of the wounded arrived at those points from Fort Donelson.

The greatest activity prevails at the arsenal here, packing carridges and loading shell for shipment down the river.

It is reported on high military suthority that Gen. Curtis captured most of Gen. Price's staff after leaving Springfield, including his Chief Adultant.

In fact, judging by what he says, the country has never looked upon a bigger and more lateful young raseal than the overgrown one at Springfield. Upon what ment this boy Ca sarhas fed that he has grown so great, it would not be difficult to tell. He has been crammed with all sorts of tainted doctrines—salt and fresh—to such repletion, that if he stood up he could hardly get down any more. His food has been the spoiled meat of old Democracy, once wholesome and good, but too long kept in cancus pickle that was not sweet; or cles it has been lying in the sun and heat of high position until it has got fly-blown; or or case it has ecen lying in the san and next or high position until it has got fly-blown; or perhaps kept so long in the bad air of greed of gain, and lust of office, that it has turned pa-tid and stains. It is marker told by those who know the habits and haunts of the young who know the mouts and nature or the young reprobate, that he has taken to drink, and gua-zles largely of liquors that inflame the blood and bloat the careas. He gulps down hage glasses brimfull with love of party, or hot and strong with party hate; he tarries long at his cupe when they sparkle with pro-mire of his own promotion, or give a good smell of large salaries and fat rottle; and has expressed to his confidential friends a etrong libing for a new drick lately brewed in the uth-that home of ardent spirits - with con

The war has had the effect of bringing many strange-characters into notice who were not before supposed to exist, and presenting hamsen sture in a novel and offen a romantic light. A queer one, calling himself Captain fleores Gordon de Lana Byron, who is said, and believed by many of his acquaintance—though he does not claim it himself—to be the son of the noble English poet. This Captain informs those who question him on the subject, that he is a near relative of the author of "Manfred," but refaces to enter into any perfeudant respecting the connection. Some of his friends fusite upon it that the Captain's head, cyes, hair, brow, and nose there a striking resemblance to those of his priedic strains a striking resemblance to those of his putstive father. Byron has been represented as an effectinate Apollo in appearance, though I suppose his pictures are greatly idealized; indeed, two or three, said to have been taken from life, which I have even, prove the corclusterly. If he were half as bandsome as he is painted, the Captain has deteriorated; can till there is resemblance to choose the heart has very little to do with them—will not wonder that he heart—perhaps became the heart has very little to do with them—will not wonder that he has a son almost any where, even in the army of the United States.

LOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED Action of the Board of Trade MELTING OF THE PROPLE Relief for the Wounded.

expletive whether the school house w prove. Early yesterday morning the first brick and concise dispatch flashed along the wires, on the bulletin board of the Tarsung offi cach received with wild shouts of cestary, untill men fairly grew cray. The excitement culminated in the intelligence that the renegade Euchner was captured. Shout after shout rent the air. Men sung and danced and indulged in all sorts of patriotic gymnastics. Flags were flung out from every window and rooftree and across every street. Every where the air was resonant with thrilling strains of music pesling out national anthems. The bells rang a wild, lubbators thrillmabulation. The winof surgeons and nurses, met at the Tremont waving of handkerchiefs, until they seemed in manumiting flocks of snewy doves. At no time in our remembrance has Chicago so and denly, so spontaneously, so thoroughly burst into a wild delirium of joy and rejoicing as yesterday. The wounded and dying, the sad echoes which must come to-day and to-morrows and for many to-morrows, were all for
